Hospital board anxious to get building

There were more questions than answers when Haliburton's Health Services Board met last Tuesday.

Board members are anxious to get things moving on the creation of a new hospital for the county, but this proposal is still riddled with question marks. Can the community raise its $4-million share of the costs? Will the ministry honour its commitment after the next provincial election? Where will the hospital be located?

While these questions are still unanswered, the board did come to a consensus on its need for a manager to help guide the process. The creation of this position was established as one of the top priorities during Tuesday's meeting at the Haliburton Legion. Discussions centered around a need to initiate some action and many of the board members indicated that the appointment of a manager would be an integral part of that goal.

An official title for the position hasn't been set, but executive director and CEO were titles used during discussions. A job profile for the position is expected to be prepared for the next meeting, which is scheduled for July 13, at the Catholic Church in Minden.

Board member Ted Wilkes presented a draft plan of action that was discussed. He admitted that he didn't have all the information to set priorities, but he said he hoped the plan could be "massaged" by the board into a usable and viable blueprint. The appointment of a manager was not high on Wilkes' list, although it became apparent that the majority of board members considered it essential to the plan of action.

The Ministry of Health, in its presentation at a previous meeting, also placed a high priority on finding someone to spearhead the operations.

"We need an executive director who can lead us," said Rheta Jones. "Let's get this person and get started."

The placement of the 19 acute care beds, whether it be at the Haliburton Hospital or at Hyland Crest, was also a hot topic of discussion. Stuart Baker said the ministry has a different focus than the local board.

"The ministry is focused on the plan, while we are focused on the site," Baker said. "The site is of paramount importance to the local people."

The fact that plans five years ago for the addition of 18 chronic care beds at

Canada Day Acquaintances

Christopher Maskell made friends with the goats when he visited the petting zoo, which was set up by the County Town Museum during Friday's Canada Day festival in Minden. The festival and its long list of activities had tremendous appeal for the thousands who came to spend the day in the village.

A Canada Day Splash in Minden

From Rotary Park to Main Street and on out to the Fair grounds, Minden was a hive of activity Friday as thousands came out to take part in the Canada Day activities.

The festival which began three years ago under Lisa Connelly's direction, has grown and matured into a major event with a huge line-up of activities, all geared toward family entertainment.

From the pancake breakfast in the morning to the final blast of fireworks late Friday night, the action was non-stop. The river parade, crazy raft race and canoe race kept much of the attention focused on the river. Meanwhile, a wide range of contests, activities and attractions filled out this action-packed agenda.

And although the activities were spread out over a broad area, it was easy to keep up with the happenings, thanks to the folks at Nashville North. Dale Merrill kept the loud speakers humming throughout the day with activity updates and helpful information. The action in front of his store was also non-stop as the stage was filled with Highland dancers, fashion shows, line dancing demonstrations and a generous helping of musical performances.

Highlands couples join in remembrance of D Day

It was an emotional week when two couples from Minden joined thousands of others from around the world in marking the fiftieth anniversary of the D Day Landings in Normandy.

Pete and Chris Dollo and Ken and Viola Walsh were part of the large Canadian contingent on hand June 6 to pay tribute to those who, half a century earlier, had stormed the defenses in the first northern land advance against the German invaders. Many of those soldiers remained forever in northern France, buried beneath rows of white crosses. The fortunate ones were able to return to Normandy for the commemoration and to remember their fallen comrades.

While neither Pete nor Ken took part in the D-Day invasion, they none-the-less felt a kinship to those who had fought and died in this great battle. Both were members of the army when the Normandy invasion occurred. Ken was serving in Canada, and Pete was fighting with the allies in Italy on June 6, 1944.

While the commemoration of D-Day was the centrepiece of their visit to Europe, the entire trip was a voyage back in time. It began when the couples boarded the Queen E II and set sail from New York for England. The ship was more comfortably outfitted for this trip than it had been when pressed into service during the war. But, the veterans quickly discovered they were 50 years older than when they last sailed on her as a troop carrier. "Just after sailing they went through the traditional lifeboat drill," Ken explained. "During the drill the elevators were not to be used (except for the disabled), so there were more than a few who arrived at their life boat stations puffing and a little red faced from the stress of climbing all the stairs."

The ship had been specially chartered for the reunion cruise and was filled with veterans. The entertainment which was provided matched the era as well. The passengers enjoyed musical memories by the Glen Miller Band, Vic Damone, and Bob and Delores Hope along with a variety of military bands and entertainers. Pete Dollo almost joined the entertainment crew as he stepped forward to volunteer for a magic show the first night out. Pete obviously was a perfect foil for the magician because he was called back eight times to be a part of the show.

During the crossing there were a number of services on board commemorating the naval seamen, and the troops they were transporting, who had lost their lives at sea during the war. "The services took place on the fantail of the ship," Pete explained. "Following the services, wreaths were dropped into the North Atlantic in memory of those who died."

The ship docked in Southampton. The group travelled by bus from this location to a number of services held in southern England. The two couples went to Gosport where Prime Minister Jean Chretien unveiled a plaque on the beach. It was at that location that many area residents caught sight of the couples on television. As the Prime Minister walked through the crowd chatting with the visitors and shaking hands, those on this side of the Atlantic suddenly saw the PM greeting Pete and Chris and then Ken and Viola as they stood amongst the many other veterans in attendance.

On June fifth their ship joined an estimated 2000 others in a Royal sail past. "It was an amazing sight to see," Viola remembered, "there were ships of all sizes, large cruise ships, freighters, naval vessels, gunboats, destroyers and smaller ones. The evening before, as the ships were moved into position for the sail past, they were all lit up. It was just spectacular."

During the ceremony, a Lancaster bomber accompanied by Spitfires and other warplanes flew low over the boats and dropped millions of poppies onto the water.

"The railings were jammed on every ship as the Royal yacht Britannia sailed past the line of ships," Chris recalled. Following the sail past the Queen E left for France where it docked overnight.

The veterans were taken by bus to the village of Courseulles to attend a wreath-laying ceremony at the cenotaph. It was here that the members of the Winnipeg Rifles came ashore 50 years earlier. The group then travelled to Beny Sur Mer Cemetery to walk among the neat rows of crosses that marked the fallen Canadians. "The youngest soldier we saw noted on the crosses was 17," Ken said, "the oldest was 43."

Throughout this area security was very tight as there were numerous heads of state and other dignitaries involved in various ceremonies. The couples recall seeing police or soldiers at every bridge and intersection. Whenever they entered an area where ceremonies were to be held, they would have to pass through metal detectors and undergo other security checks. In some cases the additional security assisted their travel as tour busses carrying veterans would be given special priority. In other cases, however, the security was very oppressive and on more than a few occasions veterans objected vociferously to the treatment they, as those who had liberated Europe, had to go through to be a part of ceremonies.

The group they were travelling with arrived late at one ceremony, and found that all the seating had been taken, except for a section reserved for dignitaries. The group decided that courage and valour, plus the need of some members of the group with crutches and canes, took precedence over protocol and commandeered the seating. The VIPs stood.

The warmest welcomes and most heart-felt appreciation came from the citizens of France. "Everywhere we went they welcomed us, cheering and lining the routes. At one stop we were even invited into a citizen's home for some wine and bread," Ken recalled.

"When you stand on the promenade and look at those beaches and the bunkers," Viola said, "you realize just how horrendous it must have been when the troops poured out of the boats. There was nowhere to take cover. They were just like sitting ducks. It is amazing that they made it ashore at all."

Following the ceremonies in France, the tour headed back to England.

"It was a marvelous and moving trip," Chris Dollo said. "It was just like reliving history." Pete concurs, noting that the events may have taken place 50 years ago, but once the vets started reminiscing, "It was just like it was yesterday."

Officers pay tribute to Nystedt

Officers with the Minden OPP detachment gathered on Sunday for a special service in honour of Constable Eric Nystedt, who was killed while on duty on July 3, 1993. As part of the service, Sergeant Steve Adam read a poem which was written by his daughter, Julie-Anne, in memory of Eric. A granite plaque on the front of the OPP office was also unveiled as a tribute to the fallen officer.

Caution must balance enthusiasm

the Haliburton Hospital were within weeks of getting started when the rug was pulled out from under the project by the government, has left many people skeptical of what can be done in the near future. A key issue is whether or not the people of Haliburton County and surrounding municipalities can raise the $4-million local share of this project. The task includes the addition of 30 long term beds to the Haliburton Hospital, the upgrading of that facility and the upgrading of Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home in Minden and their consolidation of acute care facilities in one location.

Changes in government, which seem inevitable at this time, could jeopardize any advancements that are made over the next few months.

The Staunworth Non-Profit Housing project that was about to get started recently was used as an example of why the board should be apprehensive. This project was postponed because the site did not meet Ministry of Environment (MOE) specifications.

"I don't think we should stampede into it," said Doug Campbell.

Gord Monk is also worried about making plans unless the MOE is consulted from the start.

"The rules are changing almost every three months," Monk said. "We need to step very carefully and cautiously."

In regard to where the acute care beds should go, Gord Monk said: "We may end up with two sites, neither of which is acceptable to the Ministry of Environment. I'm extremely cynical about dealing with the government, especially the MOE. We could make decisions that will be overturned and send us back to square one."

It is clear that board members are anxious to see some concrete advances initiated. As Wilkes said, his number one priority is to "get on with it and start laying some bricks."

Board members were asked for their impressions from the session with the Ministry of Health at the previous meeting. Lisa Mercer had a negative reaction to that meeting.

"I was left with a bad taste in my mouth," she said. "They already have their minds made up. The only thing they haven't already decided is where the 19 acute care beds will go. They would like to have made that decision too, but it is too political for them. They are going to leave that decision to us. We'll be the scapegoats."

Doug Campbell was concerned that the board would be saddled with $170,000 in operating costs. He added that the $170,000 figure should be brought to the ministry's attention to make sure that the operation is cost efficient from both a capital and operating standpoint.

"We'll be held accountable," he said.

Some of the suggestions that were made included:

- * Finding ways to provide other (profit generating) medical services to supplement the operation of such services as emergency medical care.
- * Forming an action committee of three or four people to formulate a plan.
- * Getting input from other hospitals, such as Huntsville or Barrie, which have gone through similar situations recently.
- * Contacting the Ministry of Housing for guidance.
- * Getting a "road map" from the Ministry of Health that will show the board how it is going to get from where it is now to where it will achieve its goals.
- * Consulting with those who work in the medical field within the county.

The Haliburton Ambulance crew tapped into their emergency reserves to win their heat in the bed races. Six teams competed in the Eric Nystedt Memorial Bed Race, which was open to emergency services personnel.

Darren Mills gives a big Canada Day hello to the crowds on either side of the river during the river parade.

The girls from Moose Lake Ranger Camp made a splash at the starting line of the Crazy Raft Race. Thirteen teams made the voyage from Rotary Park to the Main Street Bridge. Daves on 35 crossed the line first, followed by the buoyant team from Rudy's and the Rustin and Justin duo. College Pro Painters had the most unique entry—a bicycle-powered paddle raft. The best dressed crew was the Sesame Street gang.

Defining 'home place'

EYC project links Trent, Haliburton

The interior of the remote cabin on the shores of Halls Lake is a stark contrast in design and function.

The unmistakable warmth of a crackling wood fire radiates throughout the tiny one-room cabin while a computer monitor casts its business-like glow from its perch atop a cluttered desk on the opposite side of the room.

The Windy Pines cabin is Anna Gibson's "home place" for the summer. It is also the office for an Environmental Youth Corps project which is designed to enhance Trent University's bioregionalism course.

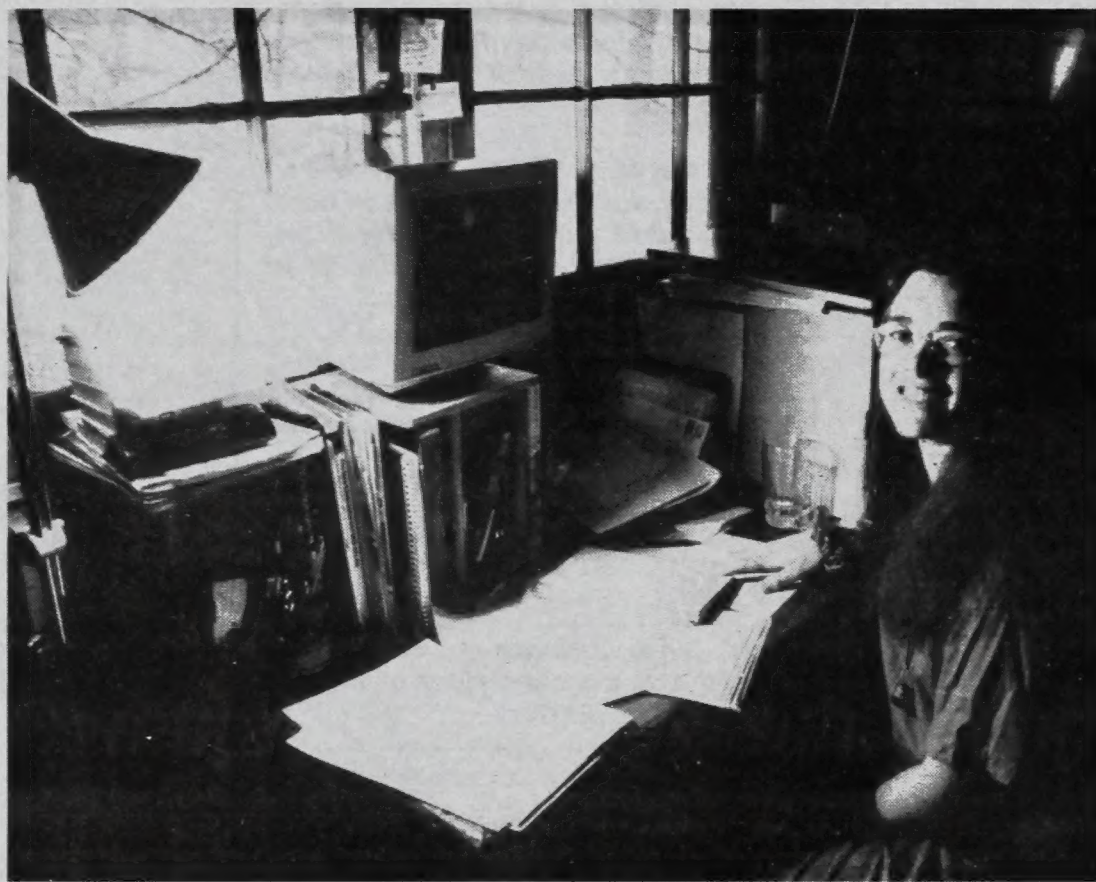

Gibson, a 22-year-old Trent University student has been hired to lay the groundwork for a bioregional atlas of Haliburton County and the modest "Windy Pine" cabin is the headquarters for this ambitious undertaking.

Gibson's task is to build a link between the county and the university; to tap into the existing banks of knowledge and to begin the process of compiling that knowledge into a package that will be useful for groups and individuals in the county.

The project is an extension of the university's bioregionalism course, which has chosen Haliburton County as its focus.

For the past five years, Trent students have been coming to Haliburton to conduct research projects on seemingly obscure topics. The students swing into the county, do their work and swing back out again, often leaving residents wondering if their co-operation has helped to accomplish anything.

Two years ago, however,

as a student in this course, Minden native Bernie Davis wrote her paper on "Two-way Communication as an Integral Component of the Methodology for Studying Bioregionalism." The following year, Gibson built on Davis' report and identified many shortcomings in the relationship between Trent students and their contacts in the county.

Residents are frustrated because their expectations are not being met and students are frustrated because they don't have the time or resources to meet those expectations. Gibson said the solution is better communication. By making local residents aware of the constraints under which these students work, the community may have more realistic expectations. And, by making the community aware of the value of these projects, the students may find broader support, which will enable them to accomplish more.

The initial steps in Gibson's summer project are two-fold: to increase awareness of the course and to compile a list of people for students to contact for future projects.

Meanwhile, she is reading each of the papers done over the past five years, writing summaries and creating categories into which they can be filed. This labour is designed to pull things together and provide a clear picture of what has been accomplished and what areas need further attention. This will help future students to plan their projects while steering a course for a comprehensive atlas.

The compilation of a bioregional atlas is a 10-year project to be completed by Trent students. In addition to filling course requirements for the students, the project is also designed to provide the county with useful information about itself. Once completed the atlas will "map out the county in as many ways to understand it as possible," said Gibson. Settlement patterns, development roads, agriculture, soil types, watersheds, flora and fauna will likely be among the key considerations in the atlas.

Ultimately, residents of this county will have easy access to the information they need to live bioregionally... which leads to the obvious question: what is bioregionalism?

According to one source, it is a personal concept because it is based on the connection people have to their region, their home place. It is about reinhabiting our homes by living in close connection with our natural surroundings. It looks at understanding our regions culturally, biologically, historically, economically and socially...

According to Gibson, "it's about learning about your home place, its natural cycles and the effects of human inhabitants. It's learning to live sustainably within a bioregion." It inspires people to commit to the land, not just their own property but all around it, she says.

In layman's terms, bioregionalism is the ability to live in concert with your surroundings. In order to do this without leaving a huge human footprint, people need as I imagine this. In the town hall of your community, a large atlas that describes 'home' in a great variety of ways, is prominently displayed. It has several hundred pages that depict layers of biophysical and cultural knowledge... It is a well-worn tome, referred to continuously by local citizens...

Doug Aberley,

from Boundaries of Home: Mapping for Local Empowerment

much information as possible about their region. Quick and easy access to this information is the function of the atlas.

All the obscure research papers compiled over the past five years contain information that will be of use in future initiatives within Haliburton County. The development of a strategic plan and land-use plans for the county are perfect examples of projects that can utilize this information.

Gibson will not complete the atlas this summer, but her work will help set a direction while also solidifying the links between the university and the community.

Anyone with ideas of what should be included in the atlas is encouraged to contact Gibson. "I'm looking for direction and ideas for future projects," she says. She can be reached through Evergreen 3000 in Haliburton village (457-9655).

Fantastic

Fantastic! That's the best way to describe what happened in Minden last Friday.

In just its third running, the annual Canada Day Festival has grown into a tremendously popular event, thanks to the superb organization and imagination of Lisa Connelly and her committee.

Mouth-watering food, great displays, wonderful performances, exciting and amusing contests and endless activities were provided in abundance to the thousands of people who came to town to soak up the fun.

Furthermore, everything ran on time, which is no easy task considering that so many events were scheduled over such a broad area. This, in itself, is a testament to the committee's fine efforts.

While Connelly and the committee deserve credit for the organization, much of the credit for the success of this event must also go to the businesses, community groups and volunteers who contributed in many ways.

Special credit has to go to Dale Merrill from Nashville North, who provided the colour commentary from his central location at the corner of South Water Street. He provided up-to-date information on the events as they unfolded throughout the day.

Equally important to the success of the festival were the people who drove the horse-drawn wagons. These folks have provided the transportation link between locations since the festival began in 1992.

Thanks to everyone involved, Minden was a great place to be this Canada Day.

Legion headware ban is a regressive act

Editor,

I would like to respond to the letter from Joan Irish in which she says in regard to Legion Clubrooms "... Sikh and Jewish veterans are welcome; their religious symbols are not."

I was always taught one of the most important beliefs in our country is freedom of religion, and that there is no 'partial' freedom — only legitimate limits on this freedom occur where religious beliefs are clearly violations of law (such as having several wives) or are used as excuses for violating the law (such as cults claiming smoking marijuana is a religious practice).

Wearing headware hardly constitutes a breach of law. When we are considering the religious beliefs of other Canadians, I don't think we have the right to question symbols which have been a clear part of their religion for centuries, whether those symbols are Sikh turbans, Jewish yarmulkes or Christian crosses.

It is a clear principle in Canada that private citizens and organizations have the right to set their own rules and standards of behaviour, as long as those rules or behaviors don't violate a law. I am very happy to live in a country with legislated religious freedom and tolerance. I just have to look at Northern Ireland, Bosnia, the Middle East, much of Africa, etc., to see the end result of intolerance and unwillingness to accept differences.

I sincerely hope the local Legion branches don't insist they have the right to set this rule. When I was growing up (elsewhere), our playground, soccer and baseball teams were supported by the local Legion and it played a very important role in helping us develop into productive, tolerant citizens by emphasizing fair play and sportsmanship. This ban would be a step backwards. I would no longer feel able to attend meetings, concerts, bingo, fund raising events, etc., taking place in a location which bans legitimate religious symbols. Other Legion branches have made clear statements about not supporting this ban; I hope the local branches do as well.

Highlands B&B the way to go

Editor,

Last Tuesday all the realtors in the county had the unique opportunity of attending a different kind of "Open House."

There are 18 bed and breakfast establishments in our county and they opened their doors so that we could visit them and see for ourselves the unique flavour of each accommodation. By the end of a wonderful day of meeting all of these very interesting people, and hearing their stories of how they came to be involved in a B&B, I was so impressed and so very proud of all the effort and ambience they have created. It will not surprise me to see Haliburton Highlands as a highlight for B&B guests from all over Ontario and abroad.

A special thank-you to Connie Sims and Heather Alloway for their assistance in helping me to arrange for this most enlightening and enjoyable day. Now all the real estate folk know what they are recommending when they suggest a B&B to customers who ask us for a place to stay. I think I'll sneak away myself for a secret B&B holiday in Haliburton Highlands.

Personal feeling

Editor,

Re: "Casting Stones".

Compliments to P.M. Gibson. She said it all -- some of us have hesitated to express our true thoughts regarding the lawn display in front of Our Lady of Fatima Church.

A stand on abortion, in my opinion, is a personal feeling -- not a stand expressed for me or my family in public by my brothers and sisters in Christ in front of any church, Catholic or Protestant.

Playground lost?

Editor,

I find it very strange that the Townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden are going to add to the municipal building at the cost of the children's playground.

If the children's playground is taken away, where do the children go?

Helen Cox
Minden

Note: The addition to the municipal office will extend over the property now occupied by the playground. The playground will be relocated to another site, which has not yet been identified.

Got a gripe? Plant a tree

Yesterday I went down to the garden to sit under my favourite apple tree. Phoebe was already there. She was sitting under my tree on a beautiful summer day. And she was crying.

Phoebe cries a fair bit. She tends to take the problems of the world on her own frail shoulders. Then she buckles under the load.

I put my arm around her shoulders. "S'amatter, Phoebe?" I asked.

"Oh" she wailed dramatically, "It's just the overwhelmingness of it all"

I had to admit, Phoebe had a point. Take our environment. Take the cutting down of the rainforests, the annihilation of the whales, the depletion of the ozone layer and carcinogens in the back bacon.

Pretty overwhelming, alright.

And that's without even mentioning Bosnia, Rwanda, the rise of the Fascist Right in Russia, never mind Ottawa, the GST, Lucien Bouchard and ring around the collar.

No wonder Phoebe was feeling bummed out.

What are you going to tell somebody suffering from a case of the Cosmic Blues like that?

Well, I don't know what a professional psychiatrist or a practicing social worker would advise, but I suggested to Phoebe that maybe she should try to narrow her focus a bit. Stop fretting about the state of the universe -- worry about her own backyard. Don't think big, I told her, think small.

Think John Chapman. Back in the early 1800s, residents of western Pennsylvania were nonplussed to be-

If you've got an apple tree in your back yard — or an apple orchard in your community, thank John Chapman.

Black'n White

by Arthur Black

hold Mister Chapman at the helm of a boatload of appleseeds plying the waters of the Ohio river. He wore a burlap coffee sack as a poncho, a tin pie plate for a hat, and he told anyone who would listen that he was on a mission.

John Chapman was a slightly bent Yankee nurseryman whose self-appointed mission in life was to propagate apple orchards everywhere. He dedicated the rest of his life to it, roaming across the hills and valleys of the American midwest, scattering seeds along the roadways, upon the riverbanks and in forest clearings and meadows.

John Chapman got planted himself about 150 years ago in, appropriately enough, an orchard overlooking Fort Wayne, Indiana. He's dead but the legacy of his mania lives on just about everywhere you look in rural North America.

If you've got an apple tree in your back yard — or an apple orchard in your community, legend has it that you can thank John Chapman for it.

Or, to call him by his more popular monicker, Johnny Appleseed.

You don't have to go that far back to find a tree-planting role model.

How about King Bhumibol?

He's making plans right now to celebrate his 50th anniversary on the throne of Thailand. Most royal types would be planning parades and fancy dress balls with lots of pomp and pageantry. Not King Bhumibol.

He's going to celebrate by planting trees.

Five hundred million of them.

Just imagine if every Canadian resolved for just one day, not to whine about the National Debt or the price of car insurance, or turbans in legions. Just imagine if every Canadian decided to plant a single tree instead.

That'd give us about 30 million new trees.

Not as many as Thailand, but it would be a start.

Ready for opening night

Let the party begin

Life will just be one big party, at least that appears to be the plans of the members of the Haliburton Summer Players and they prepare to open their production of Key For Two this Wednesday evening. The cast of this farce includes: Doug Brohm, Chris Archer, Glen Carter, Heather Scully, Debra Dart, Irene Lubowitz and Gordon Kidd. The play has been described as a wickedly amusing production by two master craftsmen of comedy. The play revolves around Harriet, a divorcee living in an elegant flat in Brighton, England. She attempts to solve her financial problems by entertaining two married gentlemen callers on different days of the week. The scheme faces collapse when her friend Anne, whose marriage is on the verge crumbling, arrives at the apartment, hotly pursued by her husband just at the moment that one of Harriet's lovers is confined to her bedroom with a sprained ankle. Unexpectedly, the second lover arrives, followed by the irate wives in search of their two itinerant husbands. The confusion builds to a rich complexity of mistaken identity, splendidly farcical situations and a climax of comic wizardry. The play is directed by Irene Lubowitz with set design and construction by John Lubowitz, lighting by Joe Bradford and Falina Pierson the house manager. The play will be presented weekly, every Wednesday evening, at the Haliburton Highland secondary School auditorium. See the listing in SummerTimes for the location of ticket outlets.

Somerville plans two works projects

Two projects in Somerville Township totalling $296,486 have been approved under the Infrastructure Works program.

Funding will be used to renovate the Kinmount Community Centre, including energy efficiency upgrading and improvements to make the building more accessible to the physically challenged. This project will create an estimated 55 person-weeks of employment.

Approval has also been given to renovate the fire training centre in Burnt River and to construct a new facility to house firefighting equipment. This is expected to create 115 person-weeks of employment.

Work is scheduled to start on both projects by August and should be completed by October.

"by funding projects such as these in Somerville Township, we are helping to enhance the community by providing state-of-the-art training facilities for firefighters," said Municipal Affairs Minister Ed Philip. Upgrading the community centre will allow more residents to take advantage of the it, he said.

Police seek help in finding driver

The OPP in Lindsay is asking for public assistance in identifying a vehicle and driver for questioning in a police investigation.

The vehicle has been seen following female drivers in the area of Victoria County Road 17, east of Lindsay and into the town of Lindsay.

The vehicle is an older model yellow pick-up truck with rust on the front of the hood above the grill and with square headlights.

The vehicle was seen being operated by a male, average build, with medium length darker hair with some blonde colouring at the tips.

If anyone knows of a vehicle matching this description, they are asked to contact the Lindsay OPP at 324-6741. The driver of this truck is also encouraged to contact the OPP.

Encouraging words from 1994 Valedictorians

Sarah Lilius, OAC

It's the effort that counts

Good evening. I would like to begin by simply expressing the sense of honour and responsibility I feel at being given the opportunity to speak on your behalf. I thank you for having this degree of trust in me.

While first reflecting on what I could possibly say, I realized that my memories were quite mixed. There were those that I would gladly forget and there were those that I know I will cherish forever. I imagine everyone has the same outlook. We all came into this school (or a similar one) with the same mix of fears and expectations. I'm not sure which there was more of: terror or anticipation. Yes, high school managed to upset me so much that I hated it and everything to do with it after three days. Obviously, not everyone had this experience, but the point I'm attempting to make is that once the scare tactics ended, I truly enjoyed myself. Not all the time, but enough to make me stop threatening to run off and join the circus.

Those next five years have, at the risk of sounding cheesy, I'm going to say it, flown by. What once seemed to be of monumental importance is now something to laugh at. Friendships have been formed, most kept, but some have drifted apart. This bittersweet pain that comes with reflecting on how our lives just stopped moving in parallel directions, I realize, that this is most certainly a part of growing up and always will be.

Twenty years from now, the chances that the majority of us will have remained in touch with more than two others are fairly non-existent. I don't see this as a negative thing, though. High school has been an integral part of my life, but I don't see it as a focal point for the rest of it. By saying this, I don't mean to imply that I haven't had wonderful experiences or that I won't remember them fondly. I will.

This year has been especially enlightening for me. The entire class pulled together as a group in a way I had never imagined. People I would normally have had only a passing association with, I became closer to. The sense of camaraderie flourished as there was always someone to commiserate with about a particular assignment, test, class, teacher or life in general. I always found the support I needed. At this point I would like to thank Mrs. Willis on behalf of the class. While certainly not the only teacher who helped us, she is the one teacher that all of us had contact with this year at least a couple of times. Without her down-to-earth guidance, it's quite likely that a few of us, myself included, would have tripped over that fine line and gone off the deep end. Thank you. Our families thank you.

Within the last two weeks we all received our letters of acceptance or otherwise from university. Disappointment was something I had to experience on a scale I had never before realized. I was so angry at myself for setting my expectations too high, until it was pointed out to me that even though I had ultimately not achieved my goal, through trying for it, I had enriched myself in ways I otherwise might not have. Not only that, if I hadn't tried, I would always have wondered if I had short-changed myself. Fortunately, I had a second choice that, while not my dream, I could always be happy with. I look at this as a way to lead your life. Set high goals, work like crazy to achieve them, but realize that whether you win or lose, it is the effort put forth that matters. I never really believed that before now. I must be growing up.

These last few years have all occurred with the premise that we are being prepared for life in the "real world", whatever that is. The reality of the situation is that the world we're entering is not the same as it was a year ago. We are a generation facing probably the most option filled years the planet has ever seen. New technology threatens to change the face of humanity in every aspect and maybe also to save it. It is through the lively, sometimes too much so, discussions in our classrooms that we have been given the chance to examine the principles of others as we identify our own. This is the one thing I believe this school has succeeded at unquestionably and I'm grateful for it because we will be called upon to make these decisions. It is up to us to take the strength and occasional wisdom of our parents, teachers and peers and incorporate our own versions into a power which will influence the world in a positive way. It's all out there waiting, we shouldn't feel restricted or threatened. All that's left is to do it.

Best of luck. Thank you.

Tobi Rowden, Grade 12

This is just the beginning

Reflecting on the past four years at HHSS I have seen visitors, such as live bands and even cows. I've seen things that always stay the same, like the constant crowd on "the bench." I don't think Jarrett and those guys left it once in four years. I've seen successes, this year's senior football COSSA champs, and also failures, Mr. Skully's sparkling Christmas cones come to mind. But one thing that has remained constant is the will and desire to succeed that this school generates, whether it be in academics, sports or just being a member of the community. Tonight our community and families celebrate how far we've come, and with their guidance, we celebrate how far we have to go.

Mr. Brohman, Mr. Burke, teachers, fellow graduates, parents, family and friends, it is a great honour to be able to speak to you on behalf of this year's graduates. An honour I will always remember because of the permanent nervous condition I'll have after giving this speech. I'm sure most of our teachers can appreciate bad nerves at some point after getting us through high school.

Throughout the last four years at HHSS, our teachers have taught us many different skills that will enable us to succeed in a future which holds many challenges. I'm sure we can all remember a certain teacher who gave us guidance and encouragement to get where we are sitting tonight.

Our school, although small, is much more personable, which I believe has had a significant influence between teacher and student relations. The teachers and staff have provided us with encouragement to be more self disciplined in meeting assignment deadlines, punctuality, and getting the necessary resources to be successful. We are fortunate to have teachers who praise us when they know we have done well or have tried our hardest. What we have learned will have an effect on society, on our children. We have a larger opportunity to affect thousands, perhaps millions of people with our accomplishments.

However, not all our learning has taken place in the classroom. Those of us who have been involved in various sports, clubs and activities offered here have come to learn that everywhere in life there are opportunities to learn and grow with experience, something we could never get from a text book. We have the responsibility to decide where we belong, who we will be and most importantly, what we will stand for in life.

Perhaps one of my most memorable moments was the opportunity to work with the puppets for Kids On The Block. I believe that this program helped to develop a sense of understanding, caring and tolerance of the social and physical disabilities faced by many people in this changing world.

One of the greatest assets I've derived from HHSS is friends. We've shared so much of our lives, we've talked about dreams and goals, we've shared happiness and pain (some caused by one another) and because of this, a bond will always remain. There isn't a certain word or phrase that can describe friendship as each one is unique in its own way. Many thoughts crossed my mind, but the best way to put it is that friendship is simply one of the best things in life. Friends can be made anywhere.

Friends are essential because they bring out the best in each of us, and when they see our worst, they still care. Friends don't judge, they accept us for what we are. In happy memories they are the stars and in our sad memories they are the shoulders we cried on and the hearts that listened. Friends always help you in your time of need and when things are going smoothly, they are content just to be your friend. Friends help create all your fun times and are always there to spread laughter and joy. They are also there the next day to tell you about your fun times when you can't quite remember for yourself. But as far as friends go, our parents are probably the most important ones we have. They've had to put up with late nights, early mornings, busy telephones, persistent requests and some really lame excuses. What would we have done without their constant nagging? For me at least, the support of my parents has been invaluable and I would like to thank them and tell them that I am proud to be their daughter.

Now that our high school days are over we will all have to become more self-sufficient. We are faced with all the hopes and fears of what the future may bring. Although we know that everything in life is not guaranteed, with the knowledge and skills we have acquired, we will now be able to make the best of any situation. There will be ample opportunities for us in our chosen fields, but we will now have to strive that much harder to succeed in this very competitive world, for the race is not given to the swift or the strong, but to he who endures.

Although we have received reassurance through our school days we are now at a path in our road where once we receive our diplomas tonight, we must make a conscious decision to carry out our career and personal aspirations to be the best we can be. Whether it be college, working or surfing in Australia, our destiny is not a matter of chance, it's a matter of choice. It's not a thing to be waited for, it's a thing to be achieved. We must go forth from here tonight with enthusiasm for our future — that's the driving force in life. Expect more good than bad, expect to succeed more than you fail and give more than you receive.

This evening will be perhaps the last time for us to share together as a group. It closes this chapter in our lives which can never be re-opened.

The memories we will take with us are different for each one of us, although we must have had some common goals along the way, as we have achieved what we set out for. If we face confidently in the directions of our dreams, then success will chase us.

For most, the sky is the limit. For us it is just the beginning.

Congratulations to the class of '94.

Multiple winner: Joan MacKenzie of Minden picked up several ribbons and medals at both the community and district levels of the Ontario Senior Games. She is seen here with the Haliburton/Muskoka District 11 trophy that is presented to the community with the most winning competitors. Haliburton County was the winner over Muskoka.

Joan MacKenzie top competitor

If there was a District Most Valuable Player award for the Senior Games, Joan MacKenzie of Minden would be the hands down choice. She entered eight events on both the community and district levels and earned more ribbons and medals than anyone else. She was one of 17 Haliburton County competitors who qualified for the Actifest Senior Games in Sudbury by earning gold medals in the Haliburton-Muskoka District Games. The district finals were preceded by the Community Games, which were qualifiers for the district level.

She was a gold medalist at the district level in swimming, shuffleboard (with partner Elinor Smith) and triathlon.

Competitors are only allowed to participate in one event at Actifest and MacKenzie has chosen to compete in the triathlon.

Actifest '94 will be held at Laurentian University from August 22 to 24.

Fish for Free

July 8, 9 & 10

Fishing is one of Ontario's most popular outdoor sports. An estimated two million anglers fish in Ontario each year. Most Ontario anglers go fishing to relax, get away and enjoy nature, but many others go just to be with family and friends. If you haven't tried fishing lately or want to, you can do so on July 8, 9 and 10 for free.

For these three days it will be legal for all Ontario residents, their families and friends to fish in Ontario waters without a fishing licence. Conservation licence limits and all other Ontario regulations apply.

For more information on fish, fishing and fisheries management in Haliburton County, contact the Ministry of Natural Resources at 286-1521. If you are already an experienced angler and want to be a volunteer worker on this summer's Gull Lake spawning bed project, contact the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association at 286-1201.

Why not enjoy Ontario's great outdoors even more?

Tykes win two of three

by Jerry Grozelle

Minden's tyke baseball team won two of its last three games.

The latest game was on Monday, June 27 in Cameron, when the Royals came home with a 14-5 victory over the host team.

Ashley Pettes paced the Minden attack. He scored three runs, including stealing home twice. He also drove in one run.

Joey Rayment got his first hit of the season, driving in a run. He also scored a pair of runs. Rayment helped the cause defensively with a great catch at third base.

Kent Greer hit a triple for one RBI and scored a run. He also pitched well while he was on the mound, recording four strike-outs in the first two innings.

Matt Mattsson contributed three runs to the winning cause, including stealing home once.

Philip Greer stole home once as well. Jamie Colliss and Ben Carpenter added a run each to Minden's tally.

Derek Barnett pitched a good game for Minden too. He had two strike-outs and made a good catch on an infield fly ball.

The Royals played host to the Fenelon #2 team the day before, handing the visitors a 13-5 defeat.

Philip Greer hit a triple for one RBI and crossed the plate with three runs. Ashley Pettes added three runs and Derek Barnett scored two and drove in a pair with a single. Kent Greer had two RBIs and one run scored, while Matt Mattsson, Gregory Harrison and Chris Boxall scored a run each.

Bobcaygeon's #3 team proved to be the spoiler of the last three games, winning 9-4 over the Royals in Minden on June 19.

Chris Boxall and Kent Greer had two hits apiece and one run each in the losing effort. Jordash Schuitemaker and Derek Barnett notched the other two Minden runs.

Royals coach Derek Barnett Sr. is pleased with his team's progress.

"The team has improved 100 per cent since the beginning of the season," he said. "I'm proud of everybody."

The tyke team recently lost a player and coach Barnett said he would like to "wish the best of luck to Jakob Poirier, who recently moved to Prince Edward Island."

The Minden tykes will play the Bobcaygeon #1 team this Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Bobcaygeon. The next home game will be Sunday, July 10 when they will host Coboconk. Game time is noon.

Cambray stages seventh-inning rally

by Jerry Grozelle

A decision to waive the mercy rule proved costly for the Regal Capital Group peewee B Royals. Cambray scored seven runs in the last inning June 27 in Cambray to down the Royals 14-11.

Royals coach Larry McKnight said the Cambray team the Minden boys beat both times in their previous meetings was a different team than they played on the 27th.

The fact that the game went the full seven innings, instead of ending at the usual hour and a half curfew, also worked against the Minden squad. The Royals had the opposition 9-7 going into the seventh inning.

Andrew Graham paced the Royals, going four for four at the plate, with one run scored. He was left stranded on base three times.

Darren Gilbert scored three runs for the RCG team, while Gord McDougall and Jonathan Swinson added two apiece.

Gary Kernohan pitched the first inning for the Royals, giving up four runs. Darren Gilbert took over on the mound for the second and third, allowing one run in the second and two in the third.

Swinson pitched two solid frames in the fifth and sixth, holding Cambray scoreless. Gilbert came back in for the seventh.

"I feel bad about the loss,"

McKnight added. "But I couldn't help but feel happy for Cambray. It was their first win of the season."

The RCG peewee B team was scheduled to play the Cambray #2 team in Minden yesterday. The Royals have a game slated for Tuesday in Cambray against the #1 squad. The next home game will be against Ops at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Haliburton ties Collingwood

Haliburton and the Collingwood Knights played to a scoreless draw in Huronia District Soccer League B division play on June 26 in Collingwood.

Jonathan Bishop leads the Haliburton scoring race with three goals. Bill Bradley and Lutz Haedicke have two each and Brandon Hatfield, Chris Carl, Ivor Thompson and Jason Corby have one each.

Former reeve is senior of the year

Maurice Watson has been presented with the Senior of the Year Award for Somerville Township by the Ministry of Citizenship.

Watson was nominated by Somerville council for his outstanding contributions to the township since turning 65 years of age.

He served as Reeve of Somerville for nine years after turning 65. In total, he served for 27 years on municipal council. Only poor health kept him from continuing.

After retiring from council, Watson became involved on a fund-raising committee for Victoria Manor.

He actively supports church functions and regularly attends special events.

A member of the Baddow Community Centre, Watson also participates in many activities at the centre.

In a letter to the Ministry of Citizenship, Elinor Burke, on behalf of Somerville council, states: "Maurice has been a good and kindly neighbour to anyone who requires assistance and people often look to him for advice."

Watson donated a whole beef to the Burnt River Carnival. It was raffled off to raise money to offset the carnival expenses.

For many years, Watson has been a volunteer with the Kinmount Agricultural Society. He spends about a month each year organizing and staking out the trailer park for the annual fair.

"It is a pleasure to submit Maurice's name, as Council feels that he is very deserving of this award. He is well respected by his peers and community members alike. He has always willingly served the area without regard for financial reward," the letter of recommendation concludes.

Each member of council offered his congratulations to Watson.

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson attended the meeting of Somerville Council to congratulate Watson. Hodgson also presented Watson with a certificate of appreciation for his contributions to the community.

Former MP Bill Scott was also on hand to offer a few words of praise to the award recipient.

Lake levels drop

A small decline in the levels of Haliburton area lakes began over the past week. The average was lower by about half of one percent, at 95.2 per cent on June 20. As the week wore on with dry conditions and high winds, the Otonabee flow was cut back to a minimum and a small release of stored water was sent from the Haliburton reservoir lakes to the canal system to maintain them. Evaporation had taken nearly all the surplus from the Kawarthas.

At 95.2 per cent, the Haliburton levels averaged 3.9 per cent more than the 19-year mean. This high starting level should result in relatively good levels all summer if the weather is not excessively dry.

Councillors pitch at Horseshoe Lake

The Horseshoe Lake Property Owners' Association will have an influence on the outcome of this fall's municipal election. With more than 200 members, the Association could prove to be the deciding factor in who represents Anson, Hindon and Minden on council.

With that in mind, the current council for the municipality was invited to the association's annual general meeting at the Whitewater Preserve on June 25. Each member of council was given the opportunity to speak.

Reeve Bern Berry began by thanking the lake's residents for their support in the last election.

"It's been a good three years with a good council," he said, "I have been your municipal representative for nine years, somewhat of a record for Anson, Hindon and Minden."

Berry outlined some of the highlights of those nine years.

"We have built up our reserves, got control of expenditures, advanced our infrastructure while improving our services," he said. "I believe that my positive, open-door approach has not only created an atmosphere of co-operation with all residents, councillors, staff and the press, it has also encouraged a rejuvenation in the business world."

Berry added that the municipality has had more changes in the last nine years than it has in the 30 previous years.

"Visit Minden for yourself and observe the growth," he invited. "We have the best community centre north of Lindsay. Our ball diamonds are the envy of the county. Our museum and Pioneer Complex has grown steadily since the opening of the first building on July 1, 1984."

Berry was also pleased to report that Minden is the only municipality with capabilities for the expansion water and sewer services.

"We obtained this through grants and proper money management, mixed with determination," he said. "There is now plenty of drinking water for all."

Being able to take advantage of the Infrastructure Program was also a source of pride for Berry. He cited the municipality's good financial position and reserves as the reason AHM could take advantage of the infrastructure funds.

"Realistic, affordable municipal budgets", with very little increases in taxes in spite of significant decreases in provincial funding were also accomplishments Berry boasted about.

Deputy-Reeve Lewis Stevens said that Council recognizes the importance of the concerns of the people who live on the area's lakes. He added after the meeting that the concerns of the "lake people" are the same concerns that affect the rest of the municipality.

"You can't go too far wrong listening to the lake people," Stevens said, adding that they do a good job of keeping a watchful eye on the environment, especially the water quality, which is important to the region's tourism trade.

Stevens invited the Horseshoe Lake Property Owners to "give us a jolt" to make sure council is listening to their wishes.

Councillor Jeanne Anthon, who has announced she will be seeking the Reeve's chair, said the main reason for her desire to step up the ladder was to get a seat on County Council.

Anthon said that some people have asked her why she chose to run for reeve at the risk of breaking up a winning team.

"I want to work at the county level," she said.

A number of permanent residents approached her and encouraged her to run for reeve, she added.

Anthon said that her experience as President of the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations has helped to prepare her for the challenges that county representation would present.

Councillor Jerry Rome stated that his term as councillor has been very enjoyable and productive.

"There haven't been any great problems," he said.

He will be seeking re-election as councillor of AHM.

Councillor Grant Plooard quipped that being the last to speak was a disadvantage since his fellow councillors had already spoken about the good things that the current council has accomplished. He praised the rest of council, saying that he believed they have done a great job as a team.

He took the opportunity to point out that the municipality's fire department has been upgraded considerably and that a new pumper/tanker truck was expected to be delivered any day. He made sure everyone was aware of the fact that the fire department upgrading was done without any increase in taxes.

Association President Vern Gilbert expressed his pleasure at the accomplishments of this AHM Council.

"It's the best council I've run into in 30 years," he said.

Gilbert was disappointed that none of the members of the Haliburton County Board of Education could find the time to attend the association's annual general meeting. Only Wally Bunn and Bryan Kernohan took the time to advise that they wouldn't be able to attend.

Reports on the Association's social activities were presented and on the environmental front, it was reported that the water quality of Horseshoe Lake is still good. The lake has been tested regularly for the past 13 years.

The special guest speaker for the day was Robert Robbins of Investor's Group in Peterborough. Robbins talked about tax planning for cottagers with specific reference to capital gains.

Robbins started off by saying: "If your cottage is your principal residence, you're laughing."

He explained that in February of this year, the capital gains exemption on cottages was eliminated. He suggested the most important thing for those who own a home and a cottage to do is get an appraisal. If the tax assessment would be more on the cottage than the home, it would be beneficial to declare the cottage as the principal residence.

People Who Make a Difference

Risky Business It's all in the line of duty for Andy Campbell

by Kelly Pettinger

Making a difference in Haliburton County's business community is Andy Campbell's job.

Campbell, who works for the Haliburton County Development Corporation, is in the risky business of providing loans of up to $75,000 to businesses that banks won't finance. So far, most risks have paid off, largely because of the support and guidance and training provided through the corporation. The success rate is also largely due to the active interest Campbell takes in his job, his clients and his community. He goes above and beyond what he is paid to do.

Why does he do it? "It feels great," says Campbell. He takes satisfaction in seeing a business that he has helped finance grow and prosper. He knows his aid is just a small part of what makes things work, but the enjoyment is immense.

"I feel like I was a part of the success of the business. We're not the main player, though, because we are usually in partnership with other lenders. It's the management that you feel good about. It's their business. It does feel good to see them succeed, but it's their doing, and a little bit of support from us and the other lenders," said Campbell.

The development corporation deals with about 15 inquiries each month. "Besides providing the funding, it also talks to people about their ideas. "I'm involved with the training programs through the Industrial Training Committee and the Community Futures Committee. There is a lot of overlap with other programs and other business activities in the community that I get involved in. We also do counselling, in addition to lending money."

Generally, the individual seeking the corporation's support must approach a bank first before going to the Development Corporation. "The banks haven't been overly receptive to lending money in the past couple of years. Through this recession they've had losses in their commercial loans and they feel their money is safer in residential mortgages and personal loans than it is for commercial ventures," he said.

Lending money in the midst of a recession is risky business, and although the majority of these risks have proven sound, there have been occasions when the businesses have failed.

"I feel terrible for those who fail. Sometimes I wonder what I could have done differently, if anything. We lend the money, and the rest is up to them. Again, it's their business and I don't have the ability to go in and run it for them. We can support them as best we can, and we make suggestions, but it is their business and we have confidence that they can manage it properly or we won't approve the loan," said Campbell.

Campbell started working at the Development Corporation when it first formed in 1985. The Chamber of Commerce prepared an application to the be included in this federal government program, and they hired Campbell to put together the proposal.

"At the time I owned a business. My wife and I owned the General Store on Horseshoe Lake, and previous to that I worked for a bank. So I knew the lending half, and I knew the buying half, and I also knew about the business community in the county. I was pleased they hired me to put together the proposal. From there a board was created, and we decided how the corporation would be formed, who would run it, how the lending process would work," said Campbell.

Campbell said business was slow in the beginning as they tried to build a relationship with the business community and gain their trust. "People were cautious about us at first. The rates were better at the bank, but people can't always get a loan at traditional banking establishments, and perhaps our terms of re-payment may be more in line with what the business requires. We might be a little more lenient on security and we take the time to try and make a go of it," said Campbell.

There are 54 Development Corporations in Ontario, and over 225 in Canada. The Haliburton centre was one of the first 20 developed.

After work Campbell goes home, eats dinner, and gets ready for either a night of coaching, cheering on, or playing some baseball himself. Both of his sons, Jordan and Mac are a part of the Minden Minor Baseball League and he plays in the adult mixed league.

He started coaching baseball two years ago when a league official asked if he would assist by coaching his oldest son's team. He agreed and began coaching for the team on which Jordan plays.

"Of course my son doesn't think it's fair that I am his coach. You are usually harder on your own kid than anyone else, but I try not to be hard on anybody because everyone is there to have fun, and that's the key," said Campbell.

He says everybody should take a turn coaching a kid's team. "For the most part the parents do take an interest their children's teams. I think coaching my son's team was a good idea. If I wasn't involved I would never get to see him play," said Campbell.

Andy and his family were seasonal residents in the Highlands before moving here permanently from St. Catharines.

As a teenager he worked summers at Camp Onondaga near Minden "The camp experience taught me a lot. It taught me how to appreciate the outdoors and canoe-tripping. I received all my life-saving credentials from Onondaga and I began teaching swimming for Minden Red Cross. I also taught swimming in St. Catharines at a city pool," said Campbell.

He went on to the University of Guelph taking courses in economics, and right out of college he landed a job at the Continental Bank of Canada in Calgary.

"That was when the boom hit and everybody was going west in the '70's. Everybody said go west after school because there were tons of jobs there. I worked there for three years, learned about banking, and then came back here and bought the store with my wife," he said.

After selling the store he was employed by the Development Corporation. "It was becoming difficult for my wife raising a kid and running a store at the same time," he said.

Campbell was a member of a committee which initiated the Haliburton County Highland Games committee six years ago. "We made a presentation to the Chamber of Commerce and they thought it was a good idea. We needed their approval. Because of the name, Haliburton Highlands, it was just a natural thing to do. We knew there were many places in Ontario where games were held, so we thought we would start them here," said Campbell.

Campbell is a volunteer organizer for the Highlands Games, a little league baseball coach, and as well, he helps business people with their financial needs. He helps them make their dreams become a reality.

Even though he is reluctant to take credit for his part in the successes, many people stop by and thank Campbell for all he has done for them. "I don't need to be thanked, it's my job," he says.

Strawberry jam laced with Grandma's Love

June 19 was Fathers' Day so the tables were decorated with place mats with pictures on fathers on them. Estella read to us in the afternoon. The book is almost finished and we have enjoyed it.

The Sunday evening chapel service was given by Rev. John Burgess and Lorna Roland played the organ. Thank you John and Lorna.

Monday was a busy day. On Sunday Jane, a friend of Mary Guillemine, drove to Streetsville and picked strawberries. The next morning she came to the auditorium where we were making jam. Some volunteers came and helped some of the residents with the berries. After measuring all the ingredients, cooking them, skimming and filling the jars, we covered them with doilies and labeled 164 jars of jam.

If you see "Grandma Loves" jam for sale, please buy some. It is great and for a good cause.

Tuesday morning chapel service was taken by Rev. Peter Walford-Davis, followed by a ministerial meeting. After the meeting I went home with Evelyn and Lloyd Coleman for lunch and after lunch Evelyn took me for a drive to West Guilford, Eagle Lake, Haliburton and home. Thank you Evelyn and Lloyd.

Doris, Donna and Dottie had crafts making crochet covers for over top of the jars and cutting apples for dehydration. Corinne and Pearl came to help pay euchre. Thank you both.

Doris saved the day by organizing a game of trivia. Our sincere thanks to everyone who worked to make this family time a success, the family members, the volunteers, the staff from all departments and the residents who helped.

Thursday was tea party and our June birthday party. The Gelert ladies provided and served a tasty tea and a delicious birthday cake. Those at the birthday table were Lola Prentice, Grace Coburn and Winnifred Barnum. Ada Lewis was unable to be present. The Gelert ladies were Audrey Vick, Dorothy MacElwaine, Dorothy Melburn, Jean Hollobon, Ruth Kelley, Leeana Bathe, Myrtle Walker, Winnie Wilson, Ina Hilyer and Joan Moore. Thank you ladies for a lovely afternoon.

Thursday evening Tom and Dorie McAllister called bingo for us. We sincerely thank them for helping us.

Friday was happy hour and we welcome the families and friends of the residents. The entertainment was Leslie Schell and Earl and Sid Cooper. Everyone enjoyed them and we thank them heartily. The volunteers were Don and Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemine, Pearl Cowen. We sincerely thank everyone.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

On Wednesday we had another delicious pot luck Luncheon. Family and friends of residents were invited and asked to please bring a dish of their choice. Again the Hyland Crest staff were there to look after and serve residents. There was loads of food and everyone enjoyed it. Since the entertainment was unable to come

Mobile hits the road this month

Families living in the outlying communities of our county will be thrilled to know that CHACE's Mobile Family Outreach Program is ready to roll.

Several communities including Dorset, Wilberforce and Stanhope enjoyed our visits over the month of June and are eagerly awaiting our July launch. Our stops will be as follows.

- July 4 and 18: West Guilford Community Centre from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; Kennisis Lake Marina from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.
- July 5 and 19: Harcourt Community Centre from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; Highland Grove Community Centre from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.
- July 6 and 20: Dorset Community Centre from 10 a.m. to noon
- July 7 and 21: Wilberforce, Lloyd Watson Centre from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

- July 11 and 25: Moore Falls, Noble Motel, from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; Gelert Community Hall from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.
- July 15 and 29: Stanhope Fire Hall from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; Halls Lake, Elvin Johnson Park from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

CHACE Inc.

by Sue Valm, Executive Director

Although we are awaiting final confirmation from the communities of Eagle Lake, Fort Irwin, Gooderham and Cardiff, we have scheduled these stops into our July calendar and will advertise their locations as soon as we are able.

Additionally, the Mobile will stop at our CHACE Haliburton Resource Centre on July 9 and at our Minden Resource Centre on July 23 from 9 a.m. to noon.

When our Mobile arrives in your community, our colourful van will be filled with exciting toys, books, puzzles and games. We will set up our portable play and activity centre in the community centre or established facility so that you and your children can explore our toys, take part in arts and crafts and meet new friends. We will also have parenting information available for families.

Parents, children grandparents or other caregivers will enjoy meeting and talking with other parents and children. It's a great, no-cost way to have a fun-filled morning or afternoon with your children and a supportive place when the day-to-day stresses pile up.

Want to know more? Call Rosemarie at 457-2989. For information on CHACE's other child care or resource centre programs, please give us a call at 457-2989.

Kinmount Model Railway

The Kinmount Railroad Club's mandate is to design and construct a model railroad depicting Kinmount to Haliburton, circa 1900 to 1925. The model is to be on display at the Pioneer Society's Exhibit during the Kinmount Fair on Labour Day weekend. The goal is to complete the section from Kinmount to Gellert this year and the remainder in 1995.

Kinmount Lions have taken on sponsorship of the model and are now in the process of launching a fund-raising project to cover costs. The club is planning to sell sponsor plaques at $25 each. The Kinmount Fair Board has already started the ball rolling purchasing the first plaque. Plaques will be displayed along the model.

Cross-border fishing

Salmon ignore the politics of fishing

"Fish War"

"Battle Over Salmon Heats Up"

The headlines describe the escalating dispute over salmon, which is an important fishery on the Pacific coast from northern California to Alaska.

As salmon populations have declined in Washington and Oregon, Canadians have been blamed for intercepting too many of the fish bound for the southern states. American fisheries have retaliated by increasing their catch of Canadian-bound fish.

Fisheries Minister Brian Tobin has urged the completion of a Pacific Salmon Treaty which could settle the controversy by setting regulations and limits. He claims that Canadians have reduced their catch of American fish by 40 per cent over the past three years while the Americans, especially in Alaska, have increased their catch of Canadian fish by 50 per cent. That translates into nine million Canadian salmon caught in American nets and four million American fish taken by Canadian boats.

Responding to the American degradation, Tobin announced that all American fishing boats passing through Canadian inland waters boundaries would be charged a $1,500 fee one way. It is another irritant that is eliciting even more bellicosity.

Overlooked amid the threats of posturing is the simple fact that our claim to be able to manage several species of fish is preposterous. For one thing, these are wild animals with complex life cycles that are poorly understood.

The fish travel over immense distances in the ocean for periods of two to five years and have no concern for the political boundaries they cross. Yet we take our borders seriously and attempt to dictate the future of these species by making them conform to our priorities and needs.

Look at a map of the Pacific

Salmon travel immense distances in the ocean and have no concern for political boundaries. Yet we attempt to dictate the future of these species by making them conform to our priorities.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

Northwest. The coast is one continuous marine ecosystem reaching from the Bering Sea thousands of kilometres to California, yet it is fragmented by the administrations of two countries, one province and four states. The vast network of rivers that feed into the Pacific and support the five species of salmon, drains the great spine of mountains paralleling the coast.

Yet the Alaskan panhandle cuts off half of the British Columbia coast and brings rivers originating deep in B.C. under U.S. jurisdiction. Further south, the Columbia River has similar dual citizenship. Watersheds and ocean shores are geophysical entities that are splintered by human political domains.

The impact of different regulatory perspectives can be seen in the fate of three major river systems. In B.C., the Fraser River has been kept free of dams and now there is great concern with protecting the salmon against the ravages of pollution and development. In contrast, the Snake and Columbia Rivers in the U.S. have been extensively dammed with the consequence that 100 distinct salmon runs have become extinct in these two river systems.

The absurdity of the squabble over quotas becomes obvious when we reflect on the life cycle of salmon. All of the species are born in freshwater and, after varying periods in rivers and lakes, go out to sea. Upon maturation, they return to the river where they were born. In other words, the fish know exactly where they belong and find their way home.

North American aboriginal people knew this. So instead of intercepting the salmon out in the ocean, they merely waited at a river's mouth or a naturally occurring narrows for the fish to come by. There are very simple ways of estimating the size of the return runs in the river and native people used these to ensure a healthy number of fish was always allowed to spawn.

In Japan, fishermen wait for the salmon to enter the river systems so the number taken for food and reproduction can be carefully controlled.

I suspect that very few people, if any, in a blindfold taste test would be able to tell the difference between an ocean caught fish and one taken at a river's mouth. Indeed, aboriginal people tell me they prefer the fish after they enter fresh water. Yet vast sums are invested in fishing fleets to capture fish at sea and that creates the problem of attempting to divvy them up into Canadian and American stocks.

With sophisticated navigation and sonar technology, it is possible to intercept fish in open water and take them in sufficient numbers to be commercially feasible. Once large ships are built to take the fish at sea, there is an enormous capital investment that must be paid off.

The obvious way to avoid the territorial disputes, to ensure a sustainable fishery and to protect the salmon is to abandon fishing for them at sea.

The salmon wars are an outlandish result of fishing practices that pay little attention or give scant consideration to the geophysical and biological needs of salmon species.

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Jim and Helen Burton attended the Boyce Reunion on Saturday, June 25 at Albion Hills Conservation Park on the Humber River at Palgrave, now owned by Metropolitan Toronto. The Boyce Farm forms a large part of the Park and the log house where Helen's mother was born has been restored and is still partially furnished, even to family photographs on the walls. Unfortunately, of the family of eleven, all are deceased but there were three generations present for a total of 54 from "the clan" from as far away as Victoria B.C. Helen remembers well as a child of around 8 years old, helping to get the cows into the stable for milking. The big cans were picked up by truck and delivered to Caulfields Dairy for processing.

Minden and District Horticultural group will meet Tuesday, July 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Agnes Jamieson Gallery. Pat Campbell will give some tips on flowers and flower arranging which will prove invaluable for our flower show in August. Everyone welcome, draws and strawberry desserts.

A most enjoyable time was had by all at the June 20 euchre games at Club 35 when the players were surprised by a clown stopping by to help Edith Russell cut her birthday cake for her 93rd birthday. Congratulations Edith.

Winners at R.C.L. Branch 636 euchre games on June 23 included, for most lone hands, Elli Langpohl and Norm Lee. Jessie Preston and Murray MacKinnon took the highs and others were Vivian Ambisson, Bill Menard, Ellen Holden, Ed Hisson, Tony Kenneth and Maxine Cross.

Now that the gardens are in and there is a little more time to relax this would be the perfect opportunity to finish up all those projects started in the winter. They will then be ready to enter in the Arts & Crafts and Needlecraft at the 1994 Halibuton County Fair on August 20 and 21.

Joe Peacock, who now drives large tour buses, stopped for a visit with Bessie Burk one day last week between trips.

Club 35 held a pot luck supper followed by euchre games on June 24 and the winners included Olive Jones, most lone hands, Jeanne Penick, Mary Pearson, Tom Pearson and Verna Sawyer. The 50-50 went to Murray Daniels who also won it on June 27. On that day the winners were Thelda Weston for most lone hands, Jean Hewitt with the high and Bill Kleinschmidt, Karen de Vries, Don Madill and Helen Henderson.

Betty and Gerald Hicks visited with family and friends in Oshawa recently.

Visitors in the area are Teresa Bacon and children from B.C. who are visiting relatives and friends.

Patricia Hicks, Joel and Rachel from Oshawa enjoyed a weekend in the Lochlin area recently.

On the sick list this week are Helen Rogers, Hilda Harrison and Angela Camelon. Sincere good wishes to them and to anyone else we missed.

Joe and Gayle Schweig of Minden attended the wedding of their son Dan Schweig to Jennifer Smith in Milton on June 25. The newlyweds will live in Brampton following their honeymoon in Nashville. Among the 200 guests attending was the groom's aunt, Gloria Smith of London, England, who has bought a cottage on Bob Lake. Gloria has been visiting her sister Gayle since June 2 and overseeing renovations on her cottage by contractor Chris Miles. Gloria's husband Jim arrived this weekend from England in time for the Schweig's Annual July 1 Lobster Feet. Joe and Gayle's son and daughter-in-law Bob and Kelly Schweig (Brampton) and daughter and son-in-law, Kathy and Laurence Gauci (Stratford) were here too, along with friends and neighbours from Bob Lake, about 30 in all. A great time was had by all.

Evelyn Gibson and Mary Cox attended a Jack and Jill shower in honour of Cathy Kitson and Kevin Kitsenetry, grandson of Ethel and Jack Cowan of Phelpsston.

Some people say we need more gun control.

But here's what you already have to do to own a firearm in this country:

- ✓ Take an optional Federal course and mandatory test to qualify for a Firearms Acquisition Certificate (FAC).
- ✓ Submit to a thorough police examination of your social, employment and psychological history, when you apply for the FAC.
- ✓ Go through an interview process with police and provide solid references.
- ✓ Wait a mandatory 28 days before your FAC is approved and issued with a photograph.
- ✓ If you want to hunt, you must take a separate mandatory hunting course, which also covers firearms handling and safety.
- ✓ Submit to another provincial written and practical test on firearms handling.
- ✓ Abide by strict federal laws that govern dozens of firearms handling and safety situations. They include: Storing firearms and ammunition separately and under lock and key; rigid transportation standards; and tough guidelines for using firearms.

CANADA ALREADY HAS SOME OF THE TOUGHEST FIREARMS LAWS IN THE WORLD. LEGAL FIREARMS OWNERS ARE NOT CAUSING CRIME! CRIMINALS ARE!

Beautiful memories he left behind.
